

Museum Makers

Exploring Art and Museums

National Gallery of Art | Fall 2018

Museum Makers Exploring Art and Museums

For high schoolers in grades 11 – 12 or equivalent

Museum makers value creativity, exploring, learning, and affirming and expanding who they can be. Museums come to life when people interact with art and each other.

Nominated and supported by a teacher from their school, students go behind the scenes of the museum with a community of like-minded peers in this multivisit program. Participants explore art through observation, sketching, discussion, independent research, and visual journaling.

Fall 2018 applications are due Friday, September 21, 2018.

Visit nga.gov/highschool for more information.

#myngadc

front: Alma Thomas, Pansies in Washington (detail), 1969, National Gallery of Art, Washington, Corcoran Collection (Gift of Vincent Melzac) | back: Mel Bochner, If the Color Changes (detail), 2001, National Gallery of Art, Washington, Gift of the Collectors Committee